Poem of the Week

‘Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening’ by Robert Frost

Whose woods these are I think I know.
His house is in the village though;
He will not see me stopping here
To watch his woods fill up with snow.
My little horse must think it queer
To stop without a farmhouse near
Between the woods and frozen lake
The darkest evening of the year.
He gives his harness bells a shake
To ask if there is some mistake.
The only other sound’s the sweep
Of easy wind and downy flake.
The woods are lovely, dark and deep,
But I have promises to keep,
And miles to go before I sleep,
And miles to go before I sleep.

Another great Shakespeare moment

Shylock is the Jewish moneylender in The Merchant of Venice and one of Shakespeare’s most intriguing characters. In many ways he is the villain of the play and presented as a stereotype.

But Shakespeare also gives him this extraordinary speech in which he challenges the anti-semitic views of the Christian characters and perhaps those of the audience as well.
What do you think?

‘I am a Jew. Hath not a Jew eyes? Hath not a Jew hands, organs, dimensions, senses, affections, passions? Fed with the same food, hurt with the same weapons, subject to the same diseases, healed by the same means, warmed and cooled by the same winter and summer, as a Christian is? If you prick us, do we not bleed? If you tickle us, do we not laugh? If you poison us, do we not die? And if you wrong us, shall we not revenge?’
(Act 3, scene 2)
